Celebrating Jewish Filmmakers

As you spend your evenings this November absorbing the best of the Jewish film experience, remember that we have been an integral cog in this great machine from the beginning.

By Rabbi Cantor Russell G. Jayne

Leo & Goldie Sheftel Rabbinical Chair | Norman & Beulah Martin Cantorial Chair

In honour of the 23rd annual Jewish Film Festival at Beth Tzedec, this month I would like to highlight one of the most Jewish industries in North America – the film industry.

Enemies of the Jewish people never tire of pointing out that the North American movie industry has largely been in the hands of Jews. This is of course true, and has been of great benefit to our world. Included in those who made the movies great, and became the heads of our major movie studios were Adolf Zukor, the founder of Paramount Studios, Wilhelm Fuchs, known as William Fox, who founded 20th Century Fox, Louis B. Mayer and Samuel Goldwyn (Schmuel Goldficz), who together founded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Carl Laemmle, founder of Universal Pictures, and Harry Cohn of Columbia Pictures.

These men did not invent the movies. That distinction goes to Thomas Edison, ironically one of the most profound religious bigots who ever walked this earth. What was remarkable about the Jewish immigrants from Europe, who revolutionized this industry, was their ability to recognize the potential in this new medium when it first came into use shortly after their arrival in this hemisphere. It was they who made the movies big business, not only because they were personally involved in studio production but also because they invented a means of distributing them.

For example, Zukor insisted that theater owners who wanted to show Paramount films had to take the entire yearly production and change movies only once a week instead of daily, as had been done before. They also recognized the importance of combining in one company the three major aspects of the movie business. These were: making films in their own studios, distributing them through their own rental companies, and exhibiting them in their own theaters.

The Jewish movie moguls also understood the need for making movies which were reflections of the union between North American and Jewish values. That is the reason why they invented the so-called Western, which always carried the cross-cultural message, then and now, that crime does not pay, or such early movies like Nobody Works like Father and Crooked Banker which dealt with the exploitation of the poor by the rich.

From 1920 until 1960, a period of about 40 years, the movie industry was at its height. From romances to crime stories and the inevitable westerns, the Jewish movie bosses produced everything imaginable.

Their imagination, however, never included overt Jewish themes, nor were they willing, during the Second World War, to so much as mention the persecution of their own families left behind in Eastern Europe. It is to the eternal shame of these powerful men that, in their desire to be seen as part of the fabric of North America, they proudly put everyone from Native Americans to the aboriginals of Australia on the silver screen, but never, in any obvious way, their fellow Jews.

Lest it be thought that the studio bosses were the only Jews in the movie business, recall that there were and are innumerable Jewish producers and directors, many of whom changed their names in order to escape recognition as Jews. This was also true of numerous Jewish actors. If you've ever seen a movie with Kirk Douglas, you would have really watched a performance by Issur Danielovitch Demsky. Winona Ryder was born Laura Horowitz, and the comedian Red Buttons was called Aaron Chwatt. Irwin Knieberg was for many years seen interviewing celebrities on TV every night. He called himself Alan King. There is even an Albert Einstein in the acting profession. He is known as Albert Brooks. The so-called Bob Dylan became a Bar Mitzvah as Robert Zimmerman and Sylvia Sidney was Sophia Jasnow in her first incarnation.

From all of this we learn that we, the Jewish people, have every reason to be proud of all our many and diverse contributions to North American society. So, as you spend your evenings this November absorbing the best of the Jewish film experience, remember that we have been an integral cog in this great machine from the beginning. The movies wouldn't be "The Movies" without us.

Enjoy the show!

Finding Community in Crisis

Beth Tzedec will continue to be a beacon of learning, prayer, and peace, no matter what challenges we face.

By Jeffrey Dworkin

President, Beth Tzedec Congregation

As we gather in community this fall, we reflect on the recent High Holidays and Sukkot - occasions filled with joy, unity, and shared blessings. We would love to hear how you and your families fared during this special season. Your feedback is invaluable, and you can share your thoughts with us by clicking here. Your experiences and perspectives matter greatly to us.

Yet, in light of recent events, I would also like to take a moment to update you on the measures we have taken to support our beloved Israel and ensure the safety and security of our community at Beth Tzedec. Our connection as a congregation remains unwavering, even during these challenging times.

In an effort to provide Israel with additional resources, our dedicated Board of Directors approved the purchase of an Israel Bond amounting to $200,000. Furthermore, generous members of our congregation pledged an additional $350,000 to purchase Israel Bonds during the solemn Kol Nidre service. It is heartening to note that the larger Jewish community in Calgary has also come together, making cash donations exceeding seven figures. If you wish to contribute, we'd encourage you to click here to purchase Israel Bonds or click here to support the Israel Emergency Fund.

As your synagogue president, I want to emphasize that your safety and security are of paramount concern to us, as they have always been. Under the vigilant supervision of our CEO, David Inhaber, we have enhanced our security measures, particularly regarding our security camera operations and entrance security. These improvements were substantial and necessary, ensuring that our sacred space remains a sanctuary for all.

Since the events of October 7, we have implemented additional security measures, which both David Inhaber and I have outlined in our respective messages to the community.

Some of the measures we have taken include:

- Enhanced entrance security when Beth Tzedec is open during the weekdays and Sundays.
- On Shabbat mornings, a welcoming usher is posted at the door to greet those attending services.

If you have joined us for Shabbat services or dropped off your children at the Calgary Jewish Academy, you may have noticed the presence of officers and vehicles from Calgary Police Services. Rest assured, CPS diligently patrols both Beth Tzedec and CJA locations on an ongoing basis. If you have any concerns or questions about these security measures, please do not hesitate to reach out to our synagogue leadership. Your peace of mind is our priority.

We find ourselves in uncertain times, not knowing how long this conflict may last or how far-reaching its impact may be. However, one thing remains certain: Beth Tzedec will continue to be a beacon of learning, prayer, and peace, no matter what challenges we face. We are one family, and our resolve to support one another, our beloved Israel, and to ensure the safety of our community is unwavering.

Am Yisrael Chai!

Building Community with the NML

From its inception, the NML has been here to support those wishing to say Kaddish for loved ones.

By Susan Inhaber

Commissioner, National Minyan League

When someone suggested I write my next article around the theme of “building community”, my first thought was, “that will be a snap to write about!” If the National Minyan League (NML) and its core mission isn’t about building and supporting the community, then I don’t know what is. From its inception, the NML has been here to support those wishing to say Kaddish for loved ones – and since this can only be done in a kehilah of at least ten Jewish adults, our members have been integral to the Beth Tzedec community and beyond.

When we switched to Zoom services due to the pandemic, this sense of being together – even if only online – became even more important. Here, at least for an hour a day, we were not alone. We had people to talk to and a community that cared about us. Two and a half years later, this is still the care for many of our members.

It is important, now that we can do safely, to gather in person as well. It is easier to have conversations, to feel the connections, and to support each other. To that end, we have been trying to encourage people to come back in-person more and more. We are seeing more people at Shabbat morning services and at some minyan services, but we would still like to see people in-person more often, especially in the morning. When a person saying Kaddish is one of only two or three people physically in the room, it can feel lonely. When the Chapel is full, our services are more freilich and joyous; we saw this during the Elul Challenge.

To encourage in-person attendance, I am giving an extra point to those who show up on their team day and bonus days. This change has been gaining traction – let’s keep it up! We love having you there in real life. Thank you to all NML participants for making this community so great.

After the High Holidays, I asked NML members if they had ever blown a shofar and if so, how that turned out.

Click here to see the responses that I received. Can you guess which one was submitted by Daryl, our Baal Kariyah?

Seudah Shelishit and Study Session: Sermons of the Sacred Fire

Saturdays, beginning November 11

4:30pm to 6:30pm

Shabbat is not only a time for rest. It is also a time to expand one’s mind through learning Torah in community. Join Rabbi Russ for seudah shelishit as we explore the sermons of Rabbi Kalonymos Kalmish Shapira, the last Hasidic Rebbe of the Warsaw Ghetto. His words offer a profound insight into one of the darkest chapters of our people’s history, and how one intensely devout Rabbi tried to help his congregation remain connected to the source of all being. Click here to register.

Hazak Lunch & Learn: My Jewish Journey in Poland

Wednesday, November 15

12:00pm to 2:00pm

This month, we’ll be learning from the incredible story of Joanne Monica Kanarek. Growing up Polish-Catholic, Joanne had no exposure to Judaism during her childhood. Her family, like many Eastern-European Jews after the Shoah, kept their Jewish heritage a secret. From knowing nothing about Judaism to becoming the president of the Krakow Hillel and a graduate of Paideia, Joanne’s Jewish story spans countries. Click here to learn more.

Did you know?

The estimated value of LIFE & LEGACY commitments in support of Beth Tzedec's future has topped $1.52 million and continues to grow. To date, close to $17.7 million has been raised in support of organizations throughout Jewish Calgary, and more than $1.26 billion has been raised by participating agencies throughout North America. Regardless of your age, stage and income level, you can give a gift to the future, supporting your Shul, your community and your people.

Be remembered forever!

If you have already designated Beth Tzedec as a beneficiary in your will, trust, retirement account or life insurance policy or you would like to plan your legacy gift, please contact Beth Tzedec President Jeffrey Dworkin at president@bethtzedec.ca or CEO David Inhaber at ceo@bethtzedec.ca.
