Celebrating Jewish Filmmakers

The movies wouldn't be "The Movies" without us!

By Rabbi Cantor Russell G. Jayne

Leo & Goldie Sheftel Rabbinical Chair | Norman & Beulah Martin Cantorial Chair

In honour of the 24th annual Jewish Film Festival at Beth Tzedec, I would like to highlight this month one of the most Jewish Industries in North America, the film industry.

Enemies of the Jewish people are never tired of pointing out that the North American movie industry has largely been in the hands of Jews. This is of course true, and has been of great benefit to our world. Included in those who made the movies great, and became the heads of our major movie studios were Adolf Zukor, the founder of Paramount Studios, Wilhelm Fuchs, known as William Fox, who founded 20th Century Fox, Louis B. Mayer and Samuel Goldwyn (Schmuel Goldficz), who together founded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Carl Laemmle, founder of Universal Pictures, and Harry Cohn of Columbia Pictures.

These men did not invent the movies. That distinction goes to Thomas Edison, ironically one of the most profound religious bigots who ever walked this earth. What was remarkable about the Jewish immigrants from Europe, who revolutionized this industry, was their ability to recognize the potential in this new medium when it first came into use shortly after their arrival in this hemisphere. It was they who made the movies big business, not only because they were personally involved in studio production but also because they invented a means of distributing them.

For example, Zukor insisted that theater owners who wanted to show Paramount films had to take the entire yearly production and change movies only once a week instead of daily, as had been done before. They also recognized the importance of combining in one company the three major aspects of the movie business. These were: making films in their own studios, distributing them through their own renting companies, and exhibiting them in their own theaters.

The Jewish movie moguls also understood the need for making movies which were reflections of the union between North American and Jewish values. That is the reason why they invented the so-called Western, which always carried the cross-cultural message, then and now, that crime does not pay, or such early movies like Nobody Works like Father and Crooked Banker which dealt with the exploitation of the poor by the rich.

From 1920 until 1960, a period of about 40 years, the movie industry was at its height. From romances to crime stories and the inevitable westerns, the Jewish movie bosses produced everything imaginable. Their imagination, however, never included overt Jewish themes, nor were they willing, during the Second World War, to so much as mention the persecution of their own families left behind in Eastern Europe. It is to the eternal shame of these powerful men that, in their desire to be seen as part of the fabric of North America, they proudly put everyone from Native Americans to the aboriginals of Australia on the silver screen, but never, in any obvious way, their fellow Jews.

Lest it be thought that the studio bosses were the only Jews in the movie business, it should be recalled that there were and are innumerable Jewish producers and directors, many of whom changed their names in order to escape recognition as Jews. This was also true of numerous Jewish movie actors. If you've ever seen a movie with Kirk Douglas, you would have really watched a performance by Issur Danielovitch Demsky. Winona Ryder was born Laura Horowitz, and the comedian Red Buttons was called Aaron Chwatt. Irwin Knieberg was for many years seen interviewing celebrities on TV every night. He called himself Alan King. There is even an Albert Einstein in the acting profession. He is known as Albert Brooks. The so-called Bob Dylan became a Bar Mitzvah as Robert Zimmerman and Sylvia Sidney was Sophia Jasnow in her first incarnation.

From all of this we learn that we, the Jewish people, have every reason to be proud of all our many and diverse contributions to North American society. So, as you spend your evenings this November, absorbing the best of the Jewish film experience, remember that we have been an integral cog in this great machine from the beginning. The movies wouldn't be "The Movies" without us.

Enjoy the show!

POST-EXILIC PROPHETS & THE "END" OF PROPHECY WITH RABBI RUSS

WEDNESDAYS, NOVEMBER 13 & 27 AND DECEMBER 4
6:30PM-8:30PM

Join Rabbi Cantor Russ this November as he leads us through an exploration of the Jewish prophets that arose after the exiles returned from Babylon.

The books in the Tanach from this period contain some of the deepest insights found in any of the prophetic writings and are worth more detailed attention and study.

How to Build A Jewish Community

Coming together to carrying the spirit and the lessons of High Holidays through our actions year-round.

By David Inhaber

Chief Executive Office, Beth Tzedec

As we emerge from the reflection and renewal of the High Holidays, we are reminded that being part of a Jewish community is not just for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur—it's a year-round commitment. Staying connected to Beth Tzedec through volunteering, donating, and attending programs ensures that our congregation remains a vibrant place of belonging for all.

Volunteering: Putting Values into Action

The High Holidays inspire us to lead more intentional lives. Volunteering gives us the chance to live those values throughout the year. Whether by helping to organize events, serving on committees, or supporting bikkur cholim efforts, every act of service strengthens our community. Volunteering also creates lasting bonds and allows us to pass on the values of gemilut chasadim—loving-kindness—to future generations.

Giving: Sustaining Our Future

The principle of tzedakah—righteous giving—is central to the High Holidays, but it is just as essential every day. Financial contributions keep Beth Tzedec's programs and services running year-round, ensuring that everyone, regardless of financial ability, can participate fully. Your donations help fund our much-needed building repairs, support community celebrations, and provide assistance where it's needed most.

Attending Programs: Strengthening Connections

Being part of Beth Tzedec is more than attending holiday services—it's about showing up for each other through shared experiences. Programs like Shabbat dinners, adult education classes, the National Minyan League, and social events help us connect on a deeper level and build lasting relationships. When we show up for these moments, we strengthen the bonds that hold our community together.

As we carry the spirit of the High Holidays forward, let's commit to staying engaged year-round—volunteering, giving, and attending programs that nurture our connections. Together, we ensure that Beth Emeth remains a place of meaning, joy, and belonging for generations to come.

As we move forward together, let's carry the spirit of the High Holidays with us—staying connected, giving back, and building a future for generations to come.

We Will Dance Again
Documentary

Sunday, November 10 at 7:00pm

For the thousands of young free spirits who were drawn to the Nova music festival in the south of Israel, it was supposed to be a celebration of life, love, freedom and music. But as the sun rose on October 7th, the fantasy shattered.

This powerful documentary meticulously reconstructs the events of that day, providing us with a stark portrayal of the harrowing experiences of those who survived and those who did not.

Screening of We Will Dance Again is open to the entire community, at no charge.

Support Your Spiritual Community

You're invited to join the most exciting league in Calgary - while supporting your friends and neighbours.

By Susan Inhaber

Commissioner, National Minyan League

5781

Grieving, remembering, sharing.

5782

For years, we have been there to provide comfort to these families and though they may not say it, they are grateful for the support and opportunity to say kaddish to honour their loved ones.

5783

5784

Chagim, holidays,
commemorations.

Supporting, comforting,
easing.

Repeating, celebrating,
learning.

And now we come to 5785 and the Torah and holiday cycles are restarting. We are immersed in these traditions that were handed down from generation to generation in a predictable way. The cycle repeats year after year.

Thank you for being part of all of this.

If you want to make a difference reach out to us. Don't wait to be asked. And it is only a one-day commitment: morning, evening, or both.

Predictable, calming, lulling.

Join, assist, make a difference.

Fun, meaningful, inspiring.

Be there. We need you.

But then that tranquility is suddenly broken by tragedy. A death. Expected or not, the pain is the same. Suddenly, another family is in shiva; then shloshim. And those coming to shul to mourn with their community are allowed to grieve and recite the timeless kaddish largely because of the dedication of the minyan league.

We recently heard that another synagogue is trying to do something similar to the NML.

We wish them the best of luck, but at Beth Tzedec, you would be part of the ORIGINAL National Minyan League..

Email info@bethzedec.ca to be a part of the fun, while making a difference in your community..
