The Still, Sacred Voice: Shechinah at Sinai and Within

May our celebration of Shavuot awaken in us a sense of awe, and may we make ourselves ready to receive the Shechinah, through compassion, learning, and community

By Rabbi Cantor Russell G. Jayne

Leo & Goldie Sheftel Rabbinical Chair | Norman & Beulah Martin Cantorial Chair

Shavuot, known as Zman Matan Torateinu, “the time of the giving of our Torah,” commemorates the climactic moment when God’s voice thundered from the mountain and our people entered into an eternal covenant. Yet beyond the thunder and lightning, beyond the Aseret Hadibrot or “Ten Commandments”, lies a quieter but no less powerful theme, the presence of the Shechinah, God’s indwelling Presence.

The Shechinah, in Jewish mystical and rabbinic thought, is the aspect of God which dwells among us. The Divine that is immanent and close. While God in God’s infinity may seem beyond comprehension, the Shechinah is God’s nearness, felt in moments of holiness, intimacy, and community. At Sinai, our tradition teaches, the Shechinah descended upon the mountain, and all of Israel stood united beneath its canopy. We were participating at that moment in more than just a legal covenant. It was also a tender sacred encounter.

The Midrash tells us that when the Israelites stood at Sinai, they were “as one person with one heart.” That sense of affection, of being seen and held by the Infinite, was and is still at the core of the Shavuot experience.

Today, we still seek the Shechinah, not on mountaintops, but in our synagogues, in our homes, and in our hearts. The Shechinah is said to rest wherever ten Jews gather in prayer, wherever justice is pursued, and wherever kindness reigns.

This year, let Shavuot be, for us, more than a historical commemoration. Let it be a rekindling. In a world so often fractured and disconnected, the Shechinah offers a path to reconnection, with each other and with the Divine. As we read the Aseret Hadibrot, let us hear them not just as ancient laws, but as words spoken in love, through the Presence that still dwells within each one of us.

May our celebration of Shavuot awaken in us a sense of awe, and may we make ourselves ready to receive the Shechinah, through compassion, learning, and community. For as it is written, “Let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them” (Exodus 25:8). Not above them. Not beside them. Among them. That is the promise of Shavuot, and its enduring challenge, that this world and all who inhabit it can truly be transformed into the vessels of the Divine.
